Finding Issues

Our core business can be described as it's best by finding issues and solving problems. In practice we are often confronted with typical related questions:

Which solutions have been attempted in the past, with what results?

What untried steps toward a solution does the client have in mind?

Which related aspects of the client's business are not going well?

If the problem is "solved," how will the solution be applied?

What can be done to ensure that the solution wins wide acceptance?

As the established leader in operational excellence consulting, VdG Consult offers services exactly tailored to your needs.

Hierarchy of Purposes

Business Management consulting includes a broad range of activities, also many firms and their members often define these practices quite differently.

One way to categorize the activities is in terms of the professional's area of expertise (e.g. competitive analysis, corporate strategy, operations management, or human resources).

But in practice, as many differences exist within these categories as between them, a more useful way of analyzing the process is to consider its purposes; clarity about goals certainly influences an engagement's success.

That's how we get engaged in order to solve your pain.
